

A Rainstorm

Yesterday morning, it was raining heavily outside. The Black Rainstorm Warning Signal was hoisted when I was still sleeping. When it was time to go to school, I took an umbrella with me and left home.

“BAM!!!” Suddenly, I heard a loud noise when I was walking to school. I turned around and saw a car partially covered in mud because of a landslide. A man was trapped in the car and cried for help. I was anxious but I told the man to keep calm. I called the emergency hotline to ask for their help. They told me that the police and firemen would arrive as soon as possible.

Luckily, the police and the firemen arrived in about five minutes. The firemen pulled the car out and the man was sent to the hospital by the ambulance. The firemen and the police said I was brave and calm when facing dangerous situation. It was really an unforgettable day in my life!
