

A Family Day

Today, I had a wonderful outing with my family. We went to lots of places to celebrate my outstanding examination results. I was over the moon when I heard the news from Dad.

First, we went to a beach in Sai Kung and enjoyed the nice view. We took many photos there. Also, we walked along the coastline. Although such a quiet activity is not my cup of tea, I felt good to stay with my family.

Then, we went to a seafood market nearby and saw many kinds of seafood. Dad introduced the seafood to us when we walked past the seafood stalls. I could not believe my eyes when I saw a giant fish! That was so interesting.

While we were walking on the road back to the bus stop, we saw some fishermen who were working on the boats. Dad said, 'Why don't we have a try on fishing?' So, we rented a boat and prepared all the things. When it was time to set off, we discovered that we forgot to bring our fishing rods. One of the fishermen heard this and said with a warm smile, 'Here you are! You can borrow mine.' We could enjoy a fascinating sunset in a boat. That was amazing because it was my first time to see this wonderful scene.

Going to a famous seafood restaurant was our last destination. We were very hungry. Dad said, 'I can eat a horse! I want to order a grouper. It's my favourite fish!' I stopped dad immediately because groupers were getting fewer and fewer. They will become endangered unless we stop eating them. Although dad felt a bit disappointed, he respected my ideas. In the end, we went home by bus after an unforgettable day.

I feel contented to have such a wonderful family. I cherish every moment with them.
